Posted 2 months ago this is an abandoned project that I still maintain to keep it updated atleast. There was a google project called "Pharaoh's Quest" that were doing the same thing. Check their website if you're interested : www.pharaohs-quest.com Posted 2 months ago would like to know your thoughts on this idea. I am making it with the google "showcase" engine and has textures that are in the archive. I put out two screenshots and I invite you to follow me here : Posted 2 months ago hey, thanks for this idea and the screenshots. If you want to follow me here is a link to my project (still abandoned) : when I was making my project, I tried to make a top-down game and make it on the Pharaohs' Quest engine. I was having troubles on that so I started another project with the platformer tech in it (with 2D sprites). I also have that top-down game (but in 3D) in progress right now (only 10% complete so far) : Hey guys, great idea. I made a similar game before, inspired by this game, so I thought it would be cool to make a game with the same formula. This is what I've done : Although I was going to make the game for iPad but it doesn't look good enough and you can't do a lot of stuff. But the good thing is I got some cool ideas for a mobile version and this would be a great test for it. You have no worries about making a sequel. Posted 2 months ago @luisafranco, that's how I did the original. You're right about the iPad version, this game would work great on that. For mobile and 3D games I suggest you to use Unity or another game engine like Unreal Engine or CryEngine. Unity has great documentation and a lot of 3D models to use. Posted 2 months ago

What's new in Banzai Escape 2: Subterranean:

Popcap Banzai Escape 2: Subterranean Popcap is a sandbox-style video game created by Steve Szegedy and released in July 2003 for the Mac OS X operating system. Banzai Escape 2 is a playable expansion of the Banzai series of Pouke video games. Gameplay An embryo lays in stasis but grows, and within it two different races are formed. One of them is the surface-based Race of the Minstrel, the other is the Underground Race of the Necromanticon. The player/child is the mixed race of the Thesuralich. The family tree is missing and we are never sure which ones are real and which ones are not.

Reception The game was met with mixed reviews. Notable References The Game Boy version of the game was featured in the film Venture Bros. episode "The Boy Who Loved Buzz Lightyear". Notes External links The official Banzai Escape site Category:2003 video games

Cleveland Indians: Odds of No-Brainer Playoff Pick? by Zach Perry Indians announce acquisition of reliever Joe Smith The Cleveland Indians bolstered their bullpen on Tuesday by acquiring set-up man Joe Smith from the San Francisco Giants, per MLB Network's Jon Heyman. The deal was first reported by Jon Morosi of MLB.com. Smith posted a 2.96 ERA in 108 innings across parts of three seasons with the Giants, posting a 93/24 K/BB ratio. Not only was Smith the best reliever on the Giants' staff, but he was arguably the best reliever in all of baseball to have logged fewer than 100 innings this season. Some of the Indians' recent bullpen struggles, in
