This will appear a window with a keyboard. You have to select "taskbar" and "clear". That's it! Q: How to handle changing file types with Zend_File_Transfer I am trying to upload a file to a server. It is fairly straight forward to handle the authentication of the session. I get the file and get its type. $file = Zend_File_Transfer_Adapter_Http::getFileFromRequest(); When the authentication process indicates that the user is not authorized, I perform a simple redirect and store some additional information in the session. I then need to transport the file and its type to the server. if

($file->isValid($this->_post->getFileType())) {
    $file->save($this->_path.
    $this->_request->getParam('url'));
    $file->addResponseBody('authorized'); } else {
    $file->save($this->_path.
    $this->_request->getParam('url'));
    $file->addResponseBody('forbidden'); }

My problem is that because the file is not being saved as a file, I can't just call `$file->save()`. If I do that and the file is not valid, then the server gets redirected to the file's initial location, then the `save()` command has no effect. How can I
